Travel Tips

What to pack

Clothing — Light layers for daytime, a warm jacket for evenings — mountain nights can be cool even in summer.

Footwear — Closed-toe shoes or trainers; avoid sandals on the bike.

Weather gear — A light raincoat and dry bag, even in the dry season — mountain weather changes fast.

Essentials — Sunscreen, sunglasses, a scarf/buff for dust, and a portable phone charger.

Documents — Passport or ID, and a valid driving licence if self-riding.

Good to know

Fitness — Roads are winding with steep drops — Easy Rider (riding pillion) is a comfortable option if you're not an experienced rider.

Motion sickness — Bring medication if you're prone to it; the mountain roads have many curves.

Cash — Carry Vietnamese Dong in small notes — ATMs are limited once you leave Ha Giang City.

Connectivity — Mobile signal is patchy in remote valleys; download offline maps beforehand.

Permit — A government travel permit ($10/person) is required to enter Ha Giang province and is arranged by the tour operator.

Respect local culture — Ask before photographing locals, dress modestly in villages, and support local homestays.
